The Asia and Pacific Planning Bibliography is designed to alert planners, researchers, faculty, and students to studies and publications relating to urban and regional planning in Asia and the Pacific. The bibliography is selective rather than comprehensive. It lists generally available publications of scholarly value. The bibliography includes dissertations, government documents, monographs, and journal articles dating from 1970 on. Two numbers of the bibliography are issued each year. Although there may be some duplication, each issue attempts to cover the latest time period and new publications of interest.

The Asia and Pacific Planning Bibliography is a cooperative project between the Pacific Urban Studies and Planning Program and the University of Hawaii Library. The first two numbers of the bibliography were issued by the Pacific Urban Studies and Planning Program in 1971 and are now out of print. Copies are available through interlibrary loan. The third number was published as CPL Exchange Bibliography #280 and #281. Suggestions, comments, and contributions to the bibliography will be welcomed.
